Minister's foreword

Victoria's concession program gives vital help to people who need it most. It helps more than 900,000 Victorian households pay for everyday services.

Concession card holders can receive help with the costs of essential services like housing, water, energy, health, education and transport. This means more people can get the services they need to help balance their budget and improve their living standards.

Concessions on gas and electricity are a percentage discount. This means that when energy prices rise, so do concessions.

People in financial hardship can get extra help to pay water, gas or electricity bills through Utility Relief Grants.

This guide gives Victorians a quick way to find and apply for concessions that can help them meet the cost of rates, water, energy and gas. I hope you find it useful.

General information about concessions

What are concessions?	Concessions are discounts on services to help low-income Victorian households pay their bills. Concessions are available for essential services – electricity, gas, water and council rates – and for other services such as health, education and public transport. Concessions are given as a deduction on a bill or a discounted price.
Who is eligible for a concession?	Any person who holds an eligible concession card. For most concessions, you will need to have one of these cards: • Centrelink Health Care Card (cards issued in the name of a child are not eligible) • Centrelink Pensioner Concession Card • Veterans' Affairs Pensioner Concession Card • Veterans' Affairs Gold Card for all conditions. See page 12 for pictures of concession cards. Check the details for each concession to see if your card allows you to get a concession. Usually to claim a concession you must be the account holder.

I have a Commonwealth Seniors Health Card; can I get concessions with this card?	No. This card is not eligible for concessions on electricity, gas, water or council rates. Commonwealth Seniors Health Card holders receive discounts on Pharmaceutical Benefits Scheme (PBS) prescription medicines and other benefits.
I have a Victorian Seniors Card; can I get concessions with this card?	No. The Victorian Seniors Card is not eligible for concessions on electricity, gas, water or council rates. Seniors Card holders get discounted public transport and a range of discounts from participating businesses.
How do I get a concession card?	Concession cards are issued by the Commonwealth Government. Contact Centrelink or the Department of Veterans' Affairs to apply. See the Contacts section (page 61).
How do I apply for a concession?	Most concessions are given to you as a deduction on your bill. Contact the company that bills you and provide your concession details. For some concessions you will need to complete an application form. Check the details for each concession to see how to apply.

I did not know I could apply for a concession. Can I receive a backdated concession?	Generally it is up to you to check if you can get a concession and apply for it. You may be able to receive up to 12 months of backdated concessions. Contact your electricity or gas retailer, council or water corporation to ask about backdating.
I don't live in Victoria – can I apply for these concessions?	No. The concessions in this booklet are for Victorian residents only. If you live in a different state, check with your state government to find out what concessions are available to you.
